

2012 Summer Olympic Games are coming - and so are the Y's Summer Olympic Games Camps!

Watching Michael Phelps slice through the water on his way to yet another gold medal, or international sports star David Beckham on the soccer pitch, is a great inspiration for a child to try a new sport.

At the Somerset Valley Y day camp this summer, kids will have the chance to test out the high-profile Summer Olympic sports they'll see on TV.

"Campers will be able to compete on teams in Y Olympics, and at the end of the week, have a chance to take home a gold medal," said Chris Trigg, camp director at the Bridgewater Y which is offering five one-week sessions of 2012 Olympic Sports Camp. At the Hillsborough Y and Bridgewater Y, Olympic Games camp is offered for a week at the end of July.

Other new camp offerings are Future Farmers for nature lovers who would enjoy learning to live off the land, Super Snack camp, where kids snack smart and learn to create healthy foods for themselves, as well as Water Fun, where campers play water polo, volleyball, dive and jump. Also, for kids who yearn to be a DJ, there's Music Mix Masters.

Register now for the more than 80 diverse summer camps offered at the Y's three unique locations. Find out more by attending summer camp open house on Feb 24, 5-7p.m. at each of our three branches.

Y camps are priced with our mission in mind to make all of our programs accessible to all community members. Financial assistance is available.
